Dear Trinity Grammar School Community

Trinity Grammar is pleased to announce its new School Council, which assumes leadership of the school's governance from tomorrow.

The new School Council is:

- Mrs Sally Bateman – existing member
- Mr Chris Braithwaite – new member
- Mr Mathew Browning – existing member
- Prof Don Campbell – new member
- Mr John Gillam – new member
- Ms Nichola Lefroy – new member
- Ms Lucy Muchic – existing member
- Ms Lisa Williams – recently appointed member

Joining me in standing down from School Council is fellow long-standing member Helen Gaudin and Fiona Connor, who joined council last year.

The school is delighted to be welcoming its new council members.

Chris Braithwaite is a current Trinity Grammar parent with a son in Year 6. Chris is a Partner in PwC's Assurance Practice covering education and not-for-profit businesses, and has worked extensively in the areas of Audit, Risk, Corporate Finance and Business Advisory. Chris is also a Director of CatholicCare, a welfare charity and has held past governance roles at the Risk Management Institute and Swinburne University.

Don Campbell is a past student of Trinity Grammar, and the father of three boys who attended Trinity. Don is currently a Professor of Medicine at Monash University and has extensive experience in education, academic and clinical settings including pastoral responsibility for Doctors-in-training. Don brings deep experience from a long period on the Board of a not-for-profit medical foundation and other membership organisations. He also teaches in the areas of Knowledge Management, and innovation in healthcare.

John Gillam is a current Trinity Grammar parent with a son in Year 12. John has an extensive executive and non-executive career history, most recently serving as CEO of Bunnings. John is currently Chairman of CSR and a Board Member at Ruyton Girls' School, and a board member of the Clontarf Foundation, Heartwell and Mecca Brands. He has also held several voluntary Board roles over the years.

Nichola Lefroy is a current parent to four boys at Trinity (Years 12, 9 and 8) and her involvement with Trinity has spanned the ELC, Junior and Senior School. Nichola is currently the Development Manager at the Melbourne Indigenous Transition School and a Director of the Governance Committee at the Bubup Womindjeka Family and Children's Centre. She holds other Board roles in the areas of education and health.

The new member appointments follow a recent process run by School Council's Nominations Committee. That process saw 43 highly credentialed people from our community nominate for School Council.

No doubt, some will be disappointed in missing out, but we look forward to being able to include those who are interested in other ways to contribute to our great school.

The credentials of our new School Council are outstanding, and as a community, we can be confident in the group's capability and capacity to lead the school into the future.

In the short term, Council certainly has a full agenda, with a school governance review, new Headmaster appointment and community consultation program to lead. These important matters join other key school initiatives, including the 30-year Master Plan and, of course, the oversight of effective school operations moving forward.

I would like to extend my appreciation to the outgoing council members for their enormous contribution to the school over so many years. I would also like to thank the school for providing me the opportunity to serve it since 1995.

Yours sincerely
